

Hello Class, (sent by email on January 18, 2015)

Here is a reminder about assignment #6 and some resource that will guide you through developing an annotated bibliography. You can build from the citations that you picked for assignment #4, if you wish. Again, if you have any questions, please either see me during my office hours, or send me an email. Also note, that our class on Tuesday 1/20 will include a workshop/lecture about annotated bibliographies. So, you can bring your questions to this class as well.

Due, Thursday, 1/22

A#6: Provide a list of 3-4 key references with annotations (not including reading sources from class).

Go here for examples of how to write an annotated bibliography:

Here is one example that I pulled from a resource above:

London, Herbert. "Five Myths of the Television Age." Television Quarterly 10 (1) Spring 1982: 81-89.

Herbert London, the Dean of Journalism at New York University and author of several books and articles, explains how television contradicts five commonly believed ideas. He uses specific examples of events seen on television, such as the assassination of John Kennedy, to illustrate his points. His examples have been selected to contradict such truisms as: "seeing is believing"; "a picture is worth a thousand words"; and "satisfaction is its own reward." London uses logical arguments to support his ideas which are his personal opinion. He doesn't refer to any previous works on the topic. London's style and vocabulary would make the article of interest to any reader.

Thank you,
